REGULARS AND COLTS BOTH SHUT OUT THE ELIS.

Two Abbreviated Battles Inaugurate the Season at the Pole Grounds-Marquard and Tosresu Too Much for the College Batters—The Double Scores

All the old and young, big and little seasoned and recruit Giants whom McGraw has mustered together this season, some to stick and some to go their minor league way, received their friends at the Polo Grounds yesterday. In accordance with yesterday. In accordance with at and put the colts against them in e second. The old Ginnts shut Yale out in the first game and the budding Giants that Yale out in the second game. The actual score of each game was 4 to 0, but the technical score of the first was 1 to 0. The major Giants took their haif of the fifth inning in the first game, and as they already had the game won their doings in the second half of the fifth were purely ornamental so far as records would be concerned. They made three runs in the od measure part of the fifth.

Some 2,000 fans put on their flannels and took a chance in the cold, damp weather. Fach Giant from fledgling to veteran was scrutinized carefully. All were bronzed from outdoor work, and the verdict was that they were in condition. McGraw carefully refrained from saying that his carefully refrained from saying that his team would win the pennant, but the fans after looking over Mathewson and Meyers—late of the sock and buskin—Devlin, Murray, Doyle, Devore and the rest had no hesistation in saying that the Giants would make a closer pennant fight than last year. Bring on your Cubs and Pirates!

In the main conflict there was very feathery hitting until the last half of the fifth mning. Rube Marquard, who looked a much improved pitcher, held the Elistone lone hit. His drop ball and occacional slow ball were most effective, and the Yale eyes evidently hadn't been acquestomed to any such pitching. Vale, however, was entitled to one more hit. Badger, in the fourth inning, beat out a grounder to short with time to spare, but the unpercalled him out. Everybody guyed that decision.

Dovle's single an i steal and a high throw by Merritt gave the Giants a run in the fourth inning. The Yale men played a charp fielding game until the fifth, when they unloaded three errors. These with two sharp fielding game until the fifth, when they unloaded three errors. These with two baggers by Devlin and Doyle and a single by Devore gave the Gian's three runs. All told the New Yorkers made five hits. With clean support for Freeman the pros would have had much more trouble scoring of Freeman, who pitched very well. Paul Badger distinguished himself by his industry in centre field. He smothered five fly balls in the first game and three in the second.

second game merged right into the The second game merged right into the first. A good many spectators thought it was all one battle. These coits shaped up a snappy and bulky lot of bail players and were no more afraid of valle than the regulars had been. Some of the coits too had been to college; besides it wasn't football they were playing. Fine figures of men were Messrs. Tesreau, Hartley, Manush, Gowdy and Lush. Hartley, the catcher, is a strapping big fellow and handled himself well. Tesreau, his battery mate, also performed in a pleasing and efficient manner. In this game as in the first Unipire Hanself's judgment spring a chariev horse.

Then came a five inning game between McGraw's colts and Yale. The colts won by a score of 4 to 0. The Yalensians couldn't hit big Tesreau any better than they had bit Marquard. The hard hitting of Manush, who played short for the colts, was the immediate source of three runs. Manush made a brace of two baggers. The Elis made a couple of changes in their lineup in this game, McKee going to short and Bennett to second. The colts hit the ball harder than the regulars had done, but did not face as good pitching as was done by Freeman of Yale in the first setto. The score by innings:

Barney Pelty, who started on the mound for the American Leaguers, was hit all over the lot and was forced to retire from the game in the third inning after one was down. Earl Hamilton, the Joplin recruit, finished the game and pitched excellent ball all the way. Sallee besides pitching good ball also made guite a record with the stick, getting two hits, one a home run drive into the right field bleachers. Mrs. Britton, the new owner of the club, attended the game. The score:

The Glants this afternoon will journey to West Side Park, Jersey City, where they will hook up it an exhibition game with Jack Ryan's Skeeters. Manager McGraw plans to use Raymond, Willse and Crandell on the rubber, and each pitcher will have a different backstop. Jack Ryan, the leader of the Jersey City forces, will rely on one battery, his choice for the heavy work being Walter Justus and Charley Tonneman. The game will begin at 3 o'clock.

It was a raw day, although warmer than the Yankees bave been having on the trip north. Jack Quinn, who pitched the first six innings, left himself out and put on speed, while Itussell Ford steamed up some too. Only four balls went to the New York outfit, one of them a single, the other three flies to Daniels. The Yankees bunched five hits and four runs off McCloskey in the second after getting one in the first, but could do lit le with Kutz or Girard.

SIBERT'S CLEMENS PRIZE. Cornell's Fencer, a Novice, Wins by Clever

Head Work. Cornell University gained new honors with the foils yesterday when one of her novices, A. W. Sibert, took the gold medal in the bouts for the Cemens prize at the Seventh Regiment Armory. It is just a intercollegiate championship. The condi-tions for the competition yesterday atipu-lated that the contestants should be persons who never had fenced in open competition and had not won a prize. The bouts were open to any accredited institution, and the fencers had to be connected with an or-ganization of some sort. It speaks well for Cornell and for Sibert that he was the only lad whom the university sent to the meet. Yale was represented and so were Columbia, the New York Military, Academy Polytechnic Preparatory School of Brook-lyn, The Fakirs Club, the New York Turn Verein, Berkeley School, Wesley House and the French Y. M. C. A. It was believed that Harvard would have a team in the meet out no one was there from Cambridge.

The officials all were well known people in fencing circles, some of them professors and others amateurs. Dr. Graeme M. Hammond, the dean of the foilsmen in New in fencing circles, some of them professors and others amateurs. Dr. Graeme M. Hammond, the dean of the foilsmen in New York, presided over the competition. In all there-were fifteen competitors and it was necessary to divide them into four strips for the trial bouts, which consumed the greater part of the time. The fencing was very strong for amateurs and some of it would have done credit to a senior. The lads went to their work with fine spirit and the tilts were accordingly spicy and interesting. Poly Prep. made the best stand from the consideration of team, work, both her boys entering into the finals. One of them in particular was watched closely by the older men. He was Cronkite, who gave Sibert some hard work in the decisive bout. Poly is looked upon as a likely winner of the interscholastic championship, which is to be fenced next Saturday.

The winners of the four strips in the preliminaries were Fraas and Cronkite of Poly, Stevens of the French Y. M. C. A. and Sibert of Cornell. Fraas disposed easily of the other three men in his set without losing a bout, and Cronkite also went to the finals with a clean card. Stevens, in the third strip had for an opponent Rudolph Stahl of Wesley House. Stahl had excellent form and a good guard but lacked experience and lost. There were only three men in the fourth division, but they involved themselves in a three cornered tie and this caused Sibert to fence more than any of the others in order to be eligible for the finals. He defeated Smith of the New York Military Academy and Chalmers of Yale in the fenceoff and was tired when the important bouts came.

Stevens was the Ithacans s first opponent in the finals and he proved dangerous. His was a defensed to keep off Sibert's attacks. In the final bout with Cronkite Sibert won by a very small advantage. He was less aggressive than his optonent but kept his head and planned his attack. The summary:

The entrauts: Harvey Chalmers, 2d, of Yale, Louis Schene of Columbia. G. G. Smith and M. De La Vega and Fras; Schene was Elsesser and was defeated by Stahl, and Stevens and Winne.

Fourth Strip-Chalmers defeated Smith and was defeated by Sibert; Sibert defeated Chalmers and was defeated by Smith; Sinith defeated Sibert and was defeated by Smith; Smith defeated Sibert and was defeated by Chalmers. In the fenceoff Sibert defeated Smith and Chalmers.

in bleak weather, but the players kept to their work in spite of a hallstorm. Two four period games were played. Meadow Brook won the first by 4 goals to 2.

Red took the aggressive from the throw in and worked the ball up the field by easy stages, for the most part along the boards. Cowdin passed to Stoddard, who hooked it through the Meadow Brook goal for the less them of the match in less than forty. through the Meadow Brook goal for the first point of the match in less than forty-five seconds of actual play. Meadow Brook's opening score was made in even shorter time. It took J. M. Waterbury just twenty-five seconds to get the ball out of a scrimmage in midfield and with three well directed swings to place it between the goal posts.

The Meadow.Brook No. 2 got the jump on the other players and had scored before they realized what had happened. Milburn replied for the Reds with another goal in less than a minute. M. Stevenson evened the score for the Reds just before the period closed.

the score for the Reds just before the period closed.

Harry Payne Whitney, who was riding behind Foxhall Keene, was struck in the mouth by Keene's mailet during the second period. The latter was just about to swing on the ball and did not know the Meadow Brook captain was so near him. The blow cut Whitney's lips, which bled a little. J. M. Waterbury, after the hardsat kind of play, scored in the third period from a scrimmage near the Red goal. Time was called immediately afterward. L. Waterbury added the, only point in the fourth period.

The lineup:

Meadow Brook—No. 1, L. Waterbury: No. 2, J. M. Waterbury: No. 3, H. P. Whitney; back M. Stevenson.

Final score—Meadow Brook, 4: Red. 2.

Referee—R. La Montagne.

The players were shifted around in the second game. This time the Red team was victorious by 2 goals to 1. Milburn still played back for the Reds, but L. Stoddard took Stevenson's place on the Meadow Brook team. The fact that only three goals were made in the four periods shows that the sides were well matched. With Keene and Milburn at No. 1 and back, respectively, the Reds made a grand combination. The players gut a whole lot of life into their work. There was quite a little "crossing," but the fouls were not given, Meadow Brook was the first to score, the Waterburys dribbling the ball up between them, the No. 1 hitting it through with a fine back handed stroke. Then La Montagne replied with one of those quick goals that are made before any one realizes what has happened. It took exactly thirty seconds. Agassiz made the last goal scored. The lineup:

Red—P. P. Keene. No. 1: R. La Montagne. No. 2; P. L. La Montagne. No. 2; made the last goal accred. The lineup: Red - F. P. Keene, No. 1; R. La Montagne, No. 2; R. L. Agassiz, No. 3; D.
